

"I think every educator should take this course. This course made a big change in how I see children, how I will work with them, how I will support their learning, how I will nurture it too."- Course participant, Fall 2019

This initiative is funded by Alberta Children's Services and provided by MacEwan University Flight Research Team.

Exploring Early Childhood Curriculum

Now Accepting Expressions of Interest.

This free online course is for educators wanting to learn how to use Flight: Alberta's Early Learning and Care Framework to guide their daily practices.

Who is the course for?

This non-credit online course has been designed for educators who are working with young children and their families in accredited and approved programs. The course will be offered in English and French.

This term an out of school care version of the course, specifically geared for educators working with school age children and their families will be offered.

What does the course involve?

The course is 22-weeks and includes virtual classes, online discussions and reflective writing assignments. Course participants commit about 4-6 hours per week to course learning activities and upon successful course completion will receive a certificate.

Why would educators take the course?

The course helps educators increase their reflective practice, understand the importance of responsive early childhood practice, and make the important work they do visible and valuable.

How do I submit an Expression of Interest?

The first step in the application process is to go to <https://forms.gle/yVf5Y7nzQHt1XDdA> to submit an expression of interest for the Winter 2021 term. For more information contact pppinfo@macewan.ca